THE FIGHT AGAINST CORONAVIRUS—SUDDEN ACUTE RESPIRATORY SYNDROME 2-CONTINUES ALL OVER THE WORLD-DESTROY COVID-19!

The Realm <http://www.realmserver.com>

Isn't it funny how The Realm, or any online game, plays tricks on one's mind? I was talking to someone. They thought that grand master critical strike books were no longer for sale! Someone had told them they were not sold, and thus, he never knew he could just go to Cut-Purse Academy and buy that book for that skill there.

I have been trying to get the Master's Edge from Heroic Imp Haven. It will not yield. Like five hundred levels later, at least I have been playing again and making more gold on my own. One may go back and forth from evil dungeons, such as the Imp Haven, to good dungeons like Holy Caves. It makes you stronger at the other one, so it is wise to balance this alignment one way or another. In The Realm, each character has an alignment for good or evil. As you kill good or evil, you become more good or evil. One kills evil to become good and one kills good to become evil. This alignment can be changed by Alignment Baubles that may be sold only at the Swap N' Shop Silver store., which is to the left of East Leinster Teleport by about ten screens. Merely go left from EL TP and you will hit the Silver and Copper store, known as Swap N' Shop.

The Realm does not have much going for it, if you do not try to understand the people involved or the game itself. It plays fine as a solitary player, but one is bound to run into folks on gossip channels or in rooms. We try to be friendly to one another mostly, but sometimes there are bad people like Martin-Garrix who only wants to end people. He will be ended if he tries to end me!!! Just kidding! The Realm has savory and unsavory characters, and sometimes, it is different on different days or different times. The hardest thing about The Realm at present is the level 900 weapons mentioned in a previous Vector. They do not really drop at all. We found out there are no weapons past level six hundred. The level nine hundred ones were a joke. You could tell, the graphics were faked. I am telling you, even if you've seen them on others, we all know that was just an Engraved sword, to make it look like you have a Master's Edge or an Archangle Blade. These things are just fantasy people! Who believes in fantasies as realities? No one! There are no 900 weapons! Never were! HOAX!!!! Just kidding!

Charmed <https://www.tntdrama.com/shows/charmed>

The Perfect-I are battling the Charmed Ones! Three versus two! But two perfect-I versus three charmed ones at that! After the show was over, I pondered further about Charmed. So far, so good—but now there is a baby involved. Also, the demon overlord can take powers away and also confine someone to quarters. They may do it obviously in a cage, but also, it may be done from afar, to keep someone in a certain place. The demon overlord is also to be wondered if they often have to entertain other demons... they must be doing stuff sometimes, and what exactly is that? It must be video gaming in one sort or another! That is all for now!

Star Trek <https://www.startrek.com/>

So more Star Trek on the way! Q is in Picard season 2... when Q sees the difference, I think he might be in awe. Probably appearing older to respect Jean Luc... but then he notices the difference, to bring Picard back to being human! Also, Discovery went great in season three, except for a loss or two. Osira this, Osira that. Osira osira osira!!! Diamond chain, golden chain, silver chain around my neck! Also, those uniforms will never play out! They look wwwwway too uncomfortable, and they also look like they are undertakers trying to bury the dead. We need the blue uniforms to be brought back by Tig and all of Starfleet begins to be friendly and exploratory again, while facing all the facts they could bring in to that century's reference frame.

Bob Finances a new Finance

"Bob": was wondering once... what should I do with my money?? Should I invest in a company? Should I loan out some money to my friends? Should I give some money to my family? Should I finance a new business? And then he stopped. He said, Yes, finance a new business. 'I have always loved to be an entrepreneur' he thought to himself. So he decided, he would try to finance finance itself! He would try to put numbers and values to things that had no numbers or values. He would find rare or unknown things, and bring to them value and number! Numbers started going from left to right, and also, the values started to increase measurably. More and more people started to also use similar numbers and values, and it seemed like they were just copy cats. Also, they wanted money too. So he realized he would have to finance - finance, and also finance financing finance, too. He quickly loaded a spread sheet program, Microsoft Excel. He started to put down the columns, interesting things he would want to calculate. The second column denoted the amount of money associated with the first column. 'They even let you use pictures', he thought. I could draw some things and then place value to them instantly! 'I have heard of NFT's but this is ridiculous!' He went online and financed his NFT finance financing programs and agendas, and everyone loved them and paid him money to lecture and teach them just how to finance finance and finance financing finance. These moves came to be known as the ' "Bob" Finances Finances"—and should always be remembered as such. It mainly involves keeping track of numbers and values and also keeping records of tracks of numbers and values with the help of computers or other tools or gear. Remember "Bob" prays to computers, so God may be relieved.

Move and live, survive and prosper.

What's in a Name?

Here are some of the names in the Realm:

Familiar/Proficient/Expert/Master

Rings/Amulets

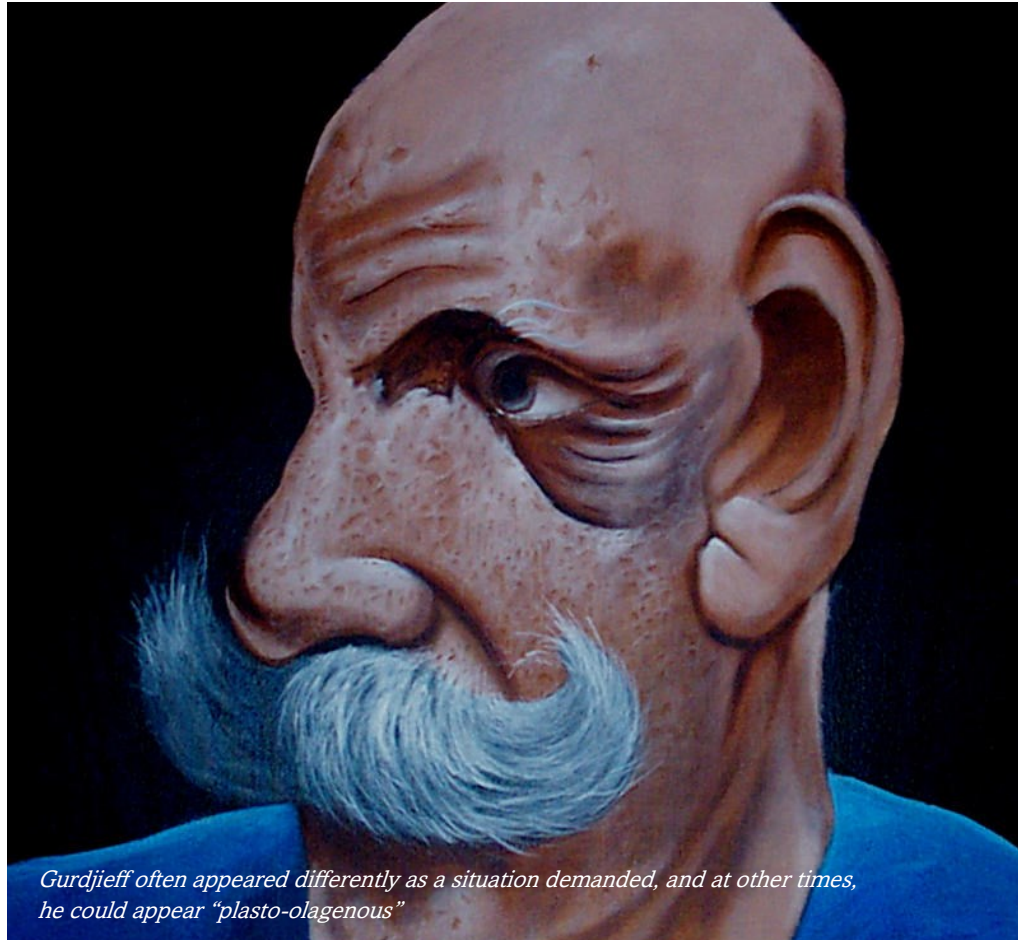

Common/Rare/Legendary/Mythical/Fabled

Attack/SPELL/Flee/Exit/Take All

Despothes; Duach; Enid; Mabon; Finvarra; Elphame

The Realm Dedication to Name

I could write and write about The Realm's importance of naming. In The Realm all your identity is your handle—it is very important. Other systems and accounts are similar. The Realm sends tells, mails, and also emotes, from your name. Also, Sorcery, once learned this spell Engrave, one may change the name of almost any object... Almost every object may be renamed by this Engrave Sorcery spell. Also, one may cook bread with immolation, it holds it. If you greater identify it, it will show that it has an aura of fire around it! Also, you may cast regeneration on water. These two things do not at present have any effect other than role playing. It is not meaningful. This is just what happens sometimes when one is thinking about names! The name of something may be made to be something funny. I sometimes will engrave a "Statue" into "Statue of InsertNameHere" — hehe. Also, there are never enough opportunities to give things away in big contests. So, feel free to make big contests or hold out simple quests with prizes of gold or items. This could be done more often and we would all benefit. Also, really, those level 900 weapons? I really think people were just using Engrave with other, lower level weapons. They do not really exist in reality. Never did they! Just kidding.

Plastics (from In Search of the Miraculous, Chapter XVI)

This was G.'s last visit to Petersburg. I tried to speak to him about impending events. But he said nothing definite on which I could base my own actions. A very interesting event took place in connection with his departure. This happened at the railway station. We were all seeing him off at the Nikolaievsky Station. G. was standing talking to us on the platform by the carriage. He was the usual G. we had always known. After the second bell he went into the carriage—his compartment was next to the door— and came to the window. He was different! In the window we saw another man, not the one who had gone into the train. He had changed during those few seconds. It is very difficult to describe what the difference was, but on the platform he had been an ordinary man like anyone else, and from the carriage a man of quite a different order was looking at us, with a quite exceptional importance and dignity in every look and movement, as though he had suddenly become a ruling prince or a statesman of some unknown kingdom to which he was traveling and to which we were seeing him off. Some of our party could not at the time clearly realize what was happening but they felt and experienced in an emotional way something that was outside the ordinary run of phenomena. All this lasted only a few seconds. The third bell followed the second bell almost immediately, and the train moved out. I do not remember who was the first to speak of this "transfiguration" of G. when we were left alone, and then it appeared that we had all seen it, though we had not all equally realized what it was while it was taking place. But all, without exception, had felt something out of the ordinary. G. had explained to us earlier that if one mastered the art of plastics one could completely alter one's appearance. He had said that one could become beautiful or hideous, one could compel people to notice one or one could become actually invisible. What was this? Perhaps it was a case of "plastics."

Now, after reading, one may wonder: how do I know what to take from this? This sounds interesting and it even teaches me a lesson. But how does it apply to my life? What is useful about this knowledge? What do I now know?

Ouspensky was Famous

Ouspensky himself was very famous before meeting even Mr. Gurdjieff, with the book Tertium Organum. Mr. Gurdjieff wrote a play or ballet script called "The Struggle of the Magicians". This is available sometimes here or there to download and read for yourself. You may find it very interesting. Ouspensky was leafing through the local newspaper, when he found an advertisement for Gurdjieff's play. He was so interested, and he was also as so connected as he was—he investigated the author of the play. They would eventually meet and the rest is history, at this point. There is little known advice to be understood, yet in The Kybalion, the instructions are easy to read. They tell you how to operate in a very nebulous way—and also introduce how to polarize, transmute, and induct—to do magic. Polarizing means to lean towards one half of a set of two poles. Tending towards Strength on purpose, instead of Weakness — as you do one thing better than you did before. Polarizing on the poles is not always advisable. It causes suffering. Yet, it is also the plays of life that make life interesting. Also, transmutation, is really only, changing a quantity from more to less or less to more! Yet, this transmutation may involve many factors, objects, things, frameworks, and yet other aspects or characteristics which may present themselves when actually attempting to transmute! Finally, induction in physics is when there is an acceleration in the electrical field, there is a velocity in the magnetic field, that creates another vibration in nearby electron-ready spaces! Induction is far more important and nebulous than this, though.

Automatic Typing

This is an automatically typed sidebar about automatic typing. To automatic type, you really need to know where the keys are on the keyboard. One gets to the point very quickly with most keyboards if they are using skillful means, to be able to express their thoughts as they appear into text through the key presses. One needs different keypresses at different times! One may need a typewriter that fits in a shoebox! One may need a supercomputer such as LUMINOUS—a temporary, laser light computer that harnesses the power of energy through holographic means.

Science Fiction

Greg Egan is a great author. He has written many books... from such things as Zendegi and Incandescence, to others such as Permutation City or Quarantine.

Philip K. Dick wrote very many books. Some of my favorites are as follows: Game Players of Titan and Galactic Pot Healer or A Maze of Death and Lies, Incorporated...

Isaac Asimov wrote books covering many topics. His best science fiction in my opinion were the Foundation novels, seven in number. Foundation, Forward the Foundation, Sec-ond Foundation, Foundation and Earth, Prelude to Foundation, Foundation and Empire, and Foundation's Edge.

Also: Greg Bear, Gregory Benford, Ray Bradbury, Orson Scott Card, Robin Cook, Michael Crichton, Stephen King, John Grisham, Dean Koontz

Ram Dass Channelling The Spirit

Ram Dass channelled the spirit often. This is a dialog I am writing spirit-automatically in a scatter-brained sort of way. Do not take anything you read here too seriously:::

RAM DASS: Hello all! I wanted to say... everything is fine over here. I am residing with the witness and all is proceeding faithfully and fatefully. I have many opportunities for spiritual growth I did not have while bodily incarnated. All things move with the spirit. Even Cosmix and East Forest mp3's made it here—I play them sometimes to spy on people down below, on Earth. Yes, I am on the Sun.. We live up here and now that we are able to channel we are able to channel. Before, this was impossible. Someone in Australia contacted someone in Africa. Later those started telepathy with some people in Europe and North America. It all snowballed into this communication being possible! From now on, you may trust everything you read in this channel. This is really me. The only me there ever was! I am really Ram Dass come back! I was the messiah after all, my Jewish brothers and sisters.....as all of you are as well. That is why I think we wait on the messiah, because it is fun to burn that plane of existence a little better. It is a deeper and richer plane of existence when it includes more years. The more years taken into account, generally, the more informative the view., considering if the report is in earnest. Also, this was not really Ram Dass, just well wishing on someone's part. We may all automatic write and type away, but what does it mean? It means we loved these people, and they should not have left us. Not even if it were for the covid. We must remember them in stride. Skillful means are skillful indeed when used for the good. I must go now, but there may be more from me later! Death IS like taking off a tight shoe! Emmanuel sends his regards and Gurdjieff and Hermes are busy. Plato is also busy. Most others, too-busy. Hope all is well! Finally, anyone may reach me at @@Ram.Dass. (formerly.Richard.(Dick).Alpert) - @@ indicates mental/solar, if they are so attuned. I even multidimensionally come across to thousands of typists at once sometimes, to prove the veracity of Moses's and King Solomon's stories in the Bible. They are groovy astral stories on one level—and if you do not like them, you should not like them. They are still awesome, anyways!

— Han Shan

Inside Out includes material that the Foundation staff has found personally useful in their own innerwork over the past dozen years. It honors any method that brings seekers closer to reality, as long as by practicing that method they do not limit other beings from also attaining realization by their methods. The practices are not intended to constitute a new religion or conflict with those presently practiced by inmates or administration. Drawing on Buddhist, Christian, Moslem, Jewish, and Hindu sources, the practices derive from that which exists in every religion, the teaching of the living spirit. They are meant to help individuals to know God or Truth, to live in God, and even to become God.

Included in the book are techniques that work with the body, mind, and daily situations, and especially problems peculiar to prisons such as violence, homosexuality, drugs, and depression. The Hatha Yoga section presents a complete pictorial exercise course designed to cleanse the nervous and psychic systems and improve the ability to sit in meditation. For opening the heart and working with the flow of forms in the universe, there are prayers, poems, reflections, visualizations, stories, letters, and photos to take the inmates inside gently, by expanding their capabilities of love and compassion, especially in regard to themselves. The practices are designed so inmates can share the grace of their own awakening and find their own humanity at the center of the heart, which may be called Christ-consciousness. This material has come through Yellow Lark, Walt Whitman, Gandhi, Maharaji Neem Karoli Baba, Swami Muktananda, Soma Krishna, Swami Kriyananda, Swami Satchidananda, Father Ed, St. John of the Cross, the Hasidic masters, St. Valentine, and many others.

For mind control there are two kinds of teachings. First, articles, lectures, and interviews by Ram Dass, Joya Santanya, David Graves, Ravi Dass, and others, which give an understanding of the various ways of thinking about the process and possibilities of awakening; and second, a number of specific meditation practices provided by Joseph Goldstein, Dan Goleman, Ram Dass, Ramana Maharshi, and Soma Krishna, which teach how to gain control over the mind process and to flow into the space beyond thought. This meditation section receives the heaviest emphasis since the Hanuman Foundation feels that the practice of meditation, self-exploration, is the basis of the spiritual quest. The section as a whole runs the gamut from form to nonform, from the concept of God and guru to emptiness and the letting go of all models of the universe.

The manual ultimately flows into what would symbolically be the end of the journey. However, since in reality there is no beginning or end, the discovery of Self becomes only the discovery of the moment, for that is all that exists. This is the realm of nonattachment, nondistinction, non-opinion — this is freedom.

Inside Out is free to all inmates, prison staff, and prison yoga instructors in any correctional facility or institution anywhere in the world; all others who request the magazine are asked to make a contribution to the Prison Ashram Project, Box 345, Route 1, Bahama, N.C. 27503. To receive a copy and be put on the mailing list, or to put another inmate or prison friend on the list, you need only send the full address on a post card.

Ravi Dass (Ron Zimaidi) has submitted a large grant proposal to the State of California for the development of a system of prisoner rehabilitation centered around yoga meditation. He can be contacted at 6181 Ruthland, Oakland, Ca. 94611.

Fuquantum Thought is only a title for a web site or a web portal. It has information about many things in the pdf, images, and text sections. Also, the password to the Chasbook.pdf is "fua" lowercase, not "FUA" uppercase.

Also, do not take everything too seriously on this web site. Some is meant to be daring and imaginative, into realms unexplored by most people. The patterns and magical essences distilled therein are for free and also as string free as I can make it. When I die, I am deleting everything and giving it all to charity. Thank you for reading this issue!

All The Magic To Muster (further notes from the fight)

The magic to muster, indeed... this period has seen many a magic come and go. Anyone who reports on notes from the good fight, should be warning their audiences, that this stuff is highly temperamental and sentimental at best. Some people are able to do horrendous things through simple phenomena. For instance, breathing at the same time as someone to feel their "heat"... this begins the possession process in some. Breathing at the same time synchronistically, intentionally, fully, and willy nilly to boot— is very stupid and a waste of time. Anything else may also be done at the same time as their targets, such as taking a shower or bath. Smoking a cigarette could be a time that is targeted. Ram Dass reminds us, "Could we stand far back enough and witness the entire drama, we would see that we are totally determined beings. The very moment you wake up, and the moment you fall asleep, all determined." "It appears as miracles and accidents. No miracles, no accidents. Just the vantage point you are sort of stuck in." "Every moment you are a full statement of your being." Some of his lines are very hard to misunderstand. Others must be understood in a broader context to fully appreciate all the pun, metaphor, analogy, and wit. Also, this simultaneous activity—doing the same thing that someone else is doing regardless of what it is—may include the bed, the bathroom, and also the closet. Finally, it has come to the attention that "possession props" may be employed if you have serious possessors after you. They may wear a certain hat, and then they pretend they are you — so fully they do not even realize they are not you! Also, they may use rubber bands, jewelry, accessories, or any other kind of clothing you can imagine. Objects once owned by one may also be employed, to gain access to possessing someone. One must be able to prohibit impulses in oneself. Once one may prohibit or inhibit an impulse, habits are sure to come next. A habit that is very indispensable is holding ones hand over one's navel—use both hands in a criss-cross manner if they are both available. If you perform this experiment, try to observe if there are any feelings or emotions that well up inside you, differently from before. Additionally, it gives one a slight edge over what is happening inside oneself and around oneself—also it appears there are many tricks to fool you— but if you could see all four bodies of those who are projecting to you—you might orient and be aware more and better than you would have otherwise been! Satanic imagery is only bullying — if one is making the images, that is one thing. If someone is forcing the images into another's mind, that is quite another. Memories and thoughts about people, actions, acts, activities, etc., are only memories and thoughts whether shared or not. Projections however are where the line could be drawn—in that they are modified, usually to be funny or humorous—and this is where we have to control ourselves and be polite and respectful to each other. The more we respect and behave with manners—the more we will be respected and have people behave with manners. Finally, menthol ban in the time of coronavirus? Seriously? The prohibition of alcohol taught us this is a cruel and profitless game to play with millions of people. Search on the web for a petition to keep it around! Thanks for reading! Have a wonderful day! All is well—that ends well.
